Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Station WGMS at 7-7:15 P.M.
6 August 1958

During his broadcast of the case of Richard Eibel, the Polish seaman, Mr. Lewis made the following reference to Radio Free Europe:

A group of the top lawyers of New York, Washington, and New Orleans were at work all night putting Richard Eibel's case together. They worked throughout the night gathering evidence to support the claim of young Eibel that he is, in fact, an anti-Communist, of which there seems to be no question whatsoever, and that he has been engaged in anti-Communist activities and writings since the days of the anti-Communist uprisings in Poland in October 1956; and furthermore, as an apprentice seaman, has been engaged in making underground contacts with similar Polish groups in other countries over the world.

To this end the lawyers located in Munich and the offices of Radio Free Europe there a copy of the actual newspaper in which one important sample of these writings by Richard Eibel appeared and had a wire photograph of the article wired to New York, with the original on its way by airmail to arrive here on Friday....
